NATIONAL BOARD OF TRADE

Proceedings of the First Day's Session at Washington—Resolutions Adopted

WASHINGTON, Jan 20.—The sixteenth annual meeting of the national board of trade was commenced in this city at noon to-day. Frederick Fraley of Philadelphia presided. Roll call disclosed the presence of forty [illegible] delegates representing [illegible] of the leading trade organizations of the country.

The annual report of the executive council examines the French system for encouragement of the shipping interest and says it will prepare a way for discussion of the subject of American shipping. There are certain questions, says the report, [illegible] the board has passed so frequently and with so near an approach to unanimity, that it may be said to have created a platform of itself, so far as these are concerned. Among them we may mention the enactment of a national bankrupt law, establishment by the United States government of a postal telegraph and telephone, suspension of the coinage of the standard silver dollar, the question of uniform legislation in states in reference to conveyances of land, judgments, collection of debts, forms, contracts and manner or [illegible] execution, their organization and [illegible] of joint stock companies. The report [illegible] respectfully referred to the commercial [illegible] of the country for their careful consideration and [illegible] recommendation as they may deem proper to make.

At the conclusion of the reading of the report, which was adopted, the election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the unanimous re-election of Mr. Fraley of Philadelphia as president.

[illegible]

Subjects relating to interstate commerce [illegible]

Two subjects [illegible] proposed by the New [illegible] trade [illegible] transportation were taken up and discussed at length.

[illegible]

The following resolutions were then adopted:

Resolved, That the national board of trade recognizes the necessity of adopting the same methods pursued by our competitors to establish quick and frequent communication with foreign markets and [illegible] shipowners [illegible] equal footing with [illegible] other countries.

Resolved, That it is expedient for the national government to assume the full expenditure authorized by law for the carriage of mails to foreign countries in American vessels, and congress is urged to [illegible] a further sum not greater [illegible] per registered ton for every [illegible] American vessel of over 1000 tons actually [illegible]

A Long Letter from Parnell Read—Nine Cleveland Cigar Makers on a Strike—Zukertort again Defeats Steinitz

[illegible] Jan 20.—The situation here has assumed an alarming phase in the coke regions. This morning 600 strikers armed [illegible] started [illegible] drove the men from work on the Alice mine, and [illegible]

[illegible] The rioters have gone across the country to the Rising Sun works. The greatest trouble is yet to come. Saturday will be pay day, and on Monday ten days will have expired since the notices to quit was given to strike in the company houses. There will likely be serious trouble when an ejectment is attempted. The report that the government has been called on for aid is untrue. Sheriff Stewart says he will not send until he finds himself unable to cope with the infuriated elements.

A Connellsville dispatch says: The Trotter, Dexter, Clinton and Franklin works are idle to-day, workmen having joined the strikers. A [illegible] has been granted, and the men are at work. Over 4000 men are now on a strike, and it is spreading throughout the region. At [illegible] several are attacked [illegible]. Trouble is also reported at [illegible]. The action of the operators in [illegible] police from Pittsburg has aggravated the situation.

DESPERATE FIGHT AT MOREWOOD.

[illegible] Jan 20.—A dispatch from Mount [illegible] to-night says: Sheriff Stewart and forty [illegible] fought a desperate conflict with [illegible] strikers this afternoon. [illegible]

[illegible]

At [illegible] the strikers passed [illegible] Morewood flourishing every manner of weapons, from revolvers to [illegible]. A Long Letter from Parnell—President Egan Induced to Retain his Position.

CHICAGO, Jan 20.—The executive committee of the Irish National League of America met in session to-day. President Egan [illegible] Charles O'Reilly, treasurer; Roger Walsh, secretary, and a large number of delegates were present. A number of telegrams and letters from prominent citizens were read expressing sympathy and promising support.

Rev. Dr. O'Reilly read a letter from Parnell which read as follows:

LONDON, Jan [illegible]

My Dear Dr. O'Reilly: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of the 14th and [illegible] of December, advising me that you have forwarded two drafts for [illegible] each to Mr. [illegible] and [illegible]

THE FIRE RECORD.

ARRIVAL OF A BURNING VESSEL.

NEW YORK, Jan 20.—The steamer Crystal arrived here to-day from Leith and Dundee with fire among her cargo. The captain says fire was discovered ten or twelve days ago, but he had been able to smother it until he reached this port, when the flames became almost beyond control. The Crystal anchored in the harbor and fireboats were soon alongside. The fire is confined to the main compartments.

FIRE IN A BREWERY.

NEW YORK, Jan 20.—Shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon three alarms were sent out for a fire which broke out in the brewery of Herman Kehler & Co. on First avenue, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets, and which threatens to assume large proportions.

The fire broke out in the kiln room and was with great difficulty extinguished. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

According to recent English statistics in each 100 living persons there are 48 males and 51 females, but for every 100 females 105 males were born. At every age of life the death rate was lower in the females, and the difference was greater in early years. In both sexes a diminished death rate is taking place. This is more marked in males than in males at all ages. The improvement is especially great in women up to 45 and males up to 35. The mean expectation of life of a male at birth is 41.9, and of a female 44.6.

One of the heroes of the Franco-German war has just died, Gen. Bonnemains, who commanded the Cuirassiers in the famous cavalry charge at Reichshofen. The feat of arms by which he stayed the advance of the Germans while his men fell in scores around him under the murderous fire until MacMahon had got clear away from Woerth and Froeschwiller is commemorated on many a canvas and in song, and to this day the appearance of a cuirassier regiment at a review is always greeted with frantic plaudits. Gen. Bonnemains was 71 years of age.

The Queen's Speech Read at the Ministerial Dinner.

A STRONG HINT AT COERCION.

Loyalists Appeal to Hartington—The Mersey Tunnel Formally Opened by the Prince of Wales—Political Notes

LONDON, Jan 20.—The queen's speech was read at the ministerial dinner to-day. Referring to Ireland, the speech says that although in some respects there are favorable indications of progress toward order in that country, yet at present Ireland is disturbed by an increasing tendency to resort to unlawful practices and a disposition to set the law at naught. The government therefore recognizes its duty to take energetic steps to enforce the law, in order to provide security for life and property and to maintain in its fullest meaning the integrity of the union, and measures necessary to secure these ends will be submitted to parliament.

The speech further promises a local government measure for England, to be followed by similar measures for Scotland and Ireland, and a bill to cheapen and facilitate the transfer of land.

It refers to the hopeful prospects of the Egyptian commission establishing stable government in Egypt, says that the question of annexing Burmah will not be decided until Lord Dufferin reports on the subject, but that the deposition of Thebaw is necessary; congratulates parliament on the peaceful foreign relations of Great Britain, trusts that peace will be maintained in the Balkans through self-control of all the powers interested, and concludes by expressing a hope that the new parliament will follow the great traditions of former parliaments.

ENGLAND

POLITICAL NOTES

LONDON, Jan 21.—The News says Mr. Gladstone has received from Sir Michael Hicks Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, a copy of the complete government scheme to deal with procedure in parliament. Gladstone will oppose any attempt of the government to press the procedure question before more important measures.

A meeting of nationalist members of parliament was held last evening. Parnell and seventy of his followers were present. They adjourned to meet the day after the reading of the queen's speech in parliament.

It is learned from official sources that Mr. W. H. Smith, now secretary of state for war, will be appointed chief secretary for Ireland. It is stated that the Earl of Carnarvon will go to the colonial office, while Col. F. A. Stanley, at present secretary for the colonies, will be made war secretary.

LOYALISTS APPEAL TO HARTINGTON.

LONDON, Jan 20.—A deputation of loyalists from Ulster to-day waited on the marquis of Hartington, war secretary under Gladstone. They pointed out that in Ireland now the power of the queen's writ does not run outside of Ulster, and said they feared that the terrorism existing in south and western Ireland would extend to Ulster unless it was checked. Lord Hartington replied that in a few hours they would know the intentions of the government respecting the Irish question, and that until then he would refrain from defining his policy. Regarding these matters the marquis advised the deputation to do their utmost to enlist the sympathy of the English people in their cause.

ARRIVAL OF THE QUEEN.

LONDON, Jan 20.—The queen arrived in London to-day from Windsor castle. She drove from the railway station to Buckingham palace in an open carriage, and received an ovation along the route. Her majesty, who is in excellent health, will open parliament to-morrow.

THE MERSEY TUNNEL.

It is Formally Opened by the Prince of Wales, with Crowds in Attendance

LIVERPOOL, Jan 20.—The tunnel between Liverpool and Berkenhead under the Mersey was formally opened to-day by the Prince of Wales and his two sons, Princes Albert and George. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, a heavy fog prevailing and snow falling, there were large crowds present both at Berkenhead and Liverpool. At the central station at Berkenhead his royal highness was presented with an address by the inhabitants of that city.

The Mersey Tunnel railway company had provided accommodations for a great number of persons within the station, and the entire space was filled with prominent people. All prominent buildings on the Liverpool side were handsomely decorated with flags and bunting. A loyal address was also presented to the Prince of Wales by the municipal officials of Liverpool. The royal party entered a special train at Rock Ferry on the joint railway between Chester and Berkenhead and proceeded through the tunnel. The party met with ovations at all points along the line.

Major Enoch G. Presents Another Chapter of its History

From the St. Helens Columbian.

Many of our race scattered into Ohio and Indiana and many of our more immediate relations in New Hampshire settled in the far south marrying the fair daughters of that sunny clime. Many he married in that mild climate far from the snow bound hills that witnessed their first infantile cries.

The Adamses are a far-seeing race and always in the lead. They are pioneers of thought, and brave in mind as in body. They possess great self government though most impassioned, they generally hold tight reins over their passions. Our own history is in point, though associating all the time during the war with the most reckless men, we neither played cards, drank whisky or used tobacco. We considered our abstemiousness nothing but a constitutional virtue. We have always drank a little wine, but never a glass of whisky.

We told Capt. White, of Murphy Grant & Co., that the northern and southern soldiers combined could whip the world and half of h—ll particularly if they had old Major Adams for a general.

PORTLAND, THURSDAY, JAN. 21, 1886

THE KAASAN BAY "FIND"

Capt. Beecher, collector of the Puget sound customs district, has discovered and seized at Kaasan bay, in Alaska, a large quantity of opium which had been smuggled into American territory, the evident purpose of the smugglers being to pass it on in small quantities and under false covers to the markets of Portland and San Francisco. The value of the "find" is between forty and fifty thousand dollars, and the building in which it was stored is said to be owned or leased by Capt. James Carroll, master of the steamship Idaho, which makes monthly trips between this port and Alaska. Capt. Carroll has long been suspected of dishonest practices in violation of the revenue laws, and this circumstance connects him with a very serious crime. Kaasan bay is a retired harbor in Southern Alaska and has been before now a rendezvous for contraband trade.

It is the theory of those who have investigated the matter that the opium just found was taken on board the Idaho at Victoria in packages marked "pork," or in some other way disguised, and discharged at Kaasan bay as ordinary freight. Here it could easily be repacked and marked "furs," or as some other Alaskan product, and so with other similar freight pass the inspectors at Port Townsend. As the tariff amounts to several dollars for each pound, the profit on this kind of "traffic" is very great. It is possible that the opium was taken to Kaasan bay from Victoria in a sloop, but this is regarded as improbable, the passage being long and the navigation difficult. The importance of this point is in respect to the law which provides that any vessel which has been employed in smuggling shall be condemned and sold for the benefit of the government. Thus, if the contraband goods were carried to Kaasan bay by the Idaho, she is liable to condemnation. She is now in Alaska on a regular trip and is expected to arrive at Victoria on the home passage in about a week. Collector Beecher has said nothing as to his intentions, but no doubt, the moment the ship reaches American water she will be seized and her captain placed under arrest.

Although smuggling at the northern coast has been a common practice for many years, the smugglers have managed to escape punishment. The long stretch of coast, its many remote and almost secret harbors, the difficulties of the navigation—these and other circumstances have been favorable to the contraband trade, which has grown into an organized "industry." The government has been outraged by a violation of the laws and defrauded of vast sums, and although it has been sufficiently well known who the guilty men were, it has been impossible to fasten guilt upon them. If Capt. Beecher is able to catch these men and to break up their business, he will do a great service. In his recent enterprise nobody will deny him the credit due to activity and courage.

Of all serious crimes under the law, smuggling is the one which least violates the consciences of men. It is a crime against law and against government, but not against morality. The smuggler robs no man. He buys his goods honestly in one market and sells them honestly in another. His offense is against an arbitrary regulation of government, in avoiding which the smuggler actually takes nothing from the government. He simply fails to pay its demands. Many men otherwise honest are unable to see any moral turpitude in smuggling. They claim the right to buy in one market and to sell in another as a natural one, and that government, in exacting toll, plays the part of the highwayman. It is not surprising, under these theories, that otherwise good men are sometimes connected with the contraband trade.

A PLEA FOR FAVORITISM

There is a bill before the territorial legislature at Olympia to exempt iron mills from taxation for five years. It will be hard for those who wish to engage in other industries, as woolen manufacture, fruit, fish or vegetable canning, or any other business looking to the future development of the resources of the territory and its ultimate prosperity to see why legislative favoritism should be shown to the iron industry. Exemption of any industry from taxation is an injustice to other forms of business by which men hope to make money. Taxation is necessary, and to make it just all that is required is that it be made equitable. No man or corporation should ask or expect to be carried along without contributing a just share to the expense fund, local and general, which is a guarantee for the legal protection of all business interests.

In no other channel is favoritism less allowable than in this. In no other will it engender the bitterness that it is possible in this. Even church property has not been allowed to escape the estimate of the assessor and the demands of the taxgatherer in Washington territory, so deep is the feeling that all property shall bear a hand in the general estimate for the general good.

South Carolina recently repealed a law exempting factories in the state from taxation for a term of years after their establishment, it being found that the growth thus encouraged was a pampered growth without promise of future stability. Louisiana, another southern state in which native energy languishes, offers like inducement, in exemption from taxation for a certain period to woolen and cotton factories, but capital has not yet been attracted to any extent to Louisiana by the effort.

If the iron industry on Puget sound cannot obtain a solid foothold that assures sufficient returns for the present and a firm basis for the future, and at the same time pay its just proportion of taxes, one of two things is the matter. Either the demand is not strong enough to justify the establishment of the business as yet, or enterprise and sagacity have not combined in the attempts that have been made. The principle upon which such a plea is based is wholly unjust. To grant it would be to establish a precedent that would deluge the next legislature with bids for business favoritism.

THE HOG INDUSTRY

The American hog has an earnest champion in the commissioner of agriculture, who in his annual report, just issued, devotes several pages to show that trichinæ are rarer in America than in Europe. A few cases of trichinosis, occurring among people who have a disgusting habit of eating pork raw, have been seized upon to excite the public mind and to appeal to the fears of ignorant people, and have had the effect intended. He says:

It would be too severe an arraignment of the intelligence and good sense of the authorities to say that they believed there was any imminent risk in the importation of our pork. It would be undiplomatic to charge them bluntly with using this senseless panic as a pretext for the interdiction when they merely desired to shut out American competition to build up a prohibitive industry at home. This is a consummation naturally to be desired by any nation to be self-supporting to save a great drain of money to other countries. But we blunt Westerners are in the habit of calling a spade a spade and have little love for indirection in trade or statesmanship and no excuses for the diplomatic practice of whipping the devil round the stump.

After diligent search the commissioner has not been able to learn of a single case of trichinosis in Europe resulting from the consumption of American pork. The academy of medicine in Paris reported that [illegible] kilograms of American pork products, equal to nearly 1,000,000 hogs, had been consumed in France in four years prior to 1881 without causing a single case of disease. Not a single case has ever been known in England or Belgium, where our pork products have been consumed in great quantities for a century. Prof. Virchow, of the board of inspection of Berlin, says that no case of trichinosis in Germany has ever been traced to American pork. All examinations show the superiority in this respect of our meats. The German cases of trichinosis are from German swine. A recent panic in France caused by the disease and death of several persons, was traced to a French hog. It has been stated by those who have found occasional trichinous samples in receipts from this country that it is probable that, encysted, salted and smoked as they were, it is doubtful if they could cause disease, and that when fed to dogs, pigs and rabbits, no injury has followed. After these facts and others which he sets forth at length, the commissioner declares that:

No one doubts that the edicts of prohibition by which our hog products are excluded are framed from some other consideration than the danger to public health. Governments that have libeled and discredited this industry and its products by false charges direct or implied should be brought to admit the truth as to the quality of the goods prohibited. If they then choose to maintain the prohibition, we have nothing to say. If it is to increase home production and leave a drain of gold and silver let them say so and we shall be content. But they must not continue to decry and misrepresent our production to the injury of a great industry and the detriment of our commerce.

For more than half a century the hog product has been an important item of our annual export. In no year since 1823 have we sent to Europe less than $1,000,000 worth. The total value of this exportation for the last five years has been $913,000,000 and $871,000,000 for the preceding period. The injury by the recent prohibition is very great. In the fiscal year of 1880-81 the exports to France were, of ham, bacon, and pork 20,000,000 pounds and [illegible] to Germany, or the total of 509,000 hogs there was sent the product of nearly 3,000,000 hogs to Great Britain. Our total export of meats was 854,000,000 pounds. In three years it fell off to 441,000,000 pounds. Lard, in the same period, fell off from 375,000,000 to 265,000,000 pounds. The decrees produced a scare, frightened the ignorant multitudes of pork eating people in non-prohibiting countries, and limited the demand for American pork. Taking advantage of this opportunity, swine-breeders increased their herds. In Great Britain the increase of pigs was 500,000 in one year, or 25 per cent. increase. France, Germany, Belgium, and other countries increased their swine. It was simply an attempt to exclude American pork from European countries and to increase the native supply. As a matter of policy this is well enough and we could have no right to complain at it; but we do have a grievance when the methods employed are slanderous and dishonest.

Swine breeding is one of the great industries of the United States. The hog "population" of the country of recent years in the summer season is from 43,000,000 to 4[illegible],000,000—four fifths as many hogs as people in the country. The number annually slaughtered is now about 25,000,000, which is 2,000,000 less than before the foreign prohibition. We are not only swine breeders, but swine eaters. The consumption of hog products for each inhabitant is 70 pounds per year (average) or half of our own weight. The commissioner asserts that we certainly eat more pork than England consumes of beef, a tea duplicating the allowance of that prime article in the British ration, and we exceed the French quota of all meats in pork products alone, and surpass in a still larger measure every other continental country. Iowa, Missouri and Kansas have larger numbers of swine than all Russia, with 100,000,000 people to feed. Indiana and Illinois have as many as Austria and Hungary, and with Kentucky and Ohio, more than all the swine of the German empire, and Tennessee, Arkansas and Texas more than the numbers in France.

HE DID NOT AVOID PERSONS PLEASURE

A young man committed suicide in New York recently because he could not find employment leaving a wife and three children destitute. Much comment has been made upon this matter and society, wealth and charity have been severally and severely arraigned as the cause of this man's desperation and death. The man appears to have been but, like thousands of others, he assumed responsibilities that he had not the ability to discharge, and took the easiest way that presented itself of shirking them.

The idea that every incapable man is the especial prey of misfortune, and that the something generalized under the name of "society," or more specifically denominated "wealth," or cynically called "charity" is responsible for it, forms the text for columns of sentimental trash. Misfortune is courted by such methods when self helpful manhood might be engendered by holding each person individually responsible for the general cast of his surroundings. A man commits suicide in the circumstances mentioned above because it takes less intelligent action to do this than to meet the daily responsibilities of life when success is dependent upon personal exertion.

Suicide is the grand resource of the coward. He first persuades himself that he is the special target of fate and that anything to which he puts his hand will, solely from this cause, fail. To withhold his hand from all endeavor is the next step, and succeeding this comes the wolf of hunger in his home. His feelings are touched by this climax of misery, and selfish to the last, he takes himself off, leaving his wife and children dependent upon the public, whose tender mercies he professed to have found so cruel.

The idea that the world owes every man a living is an erroneous one. The world owes no man anything until he has earned it. It owes honest wages to honest endeavor, and the instances in which payment is refused are few indeed in the aggregate. The man who starts out in life full of the idea that he is entitled to the help of friends and the favors of fortune, and that he can do nothing without these special manifestations of a kindly fate, begins the race handicapped. [illegible] assistance to him, except such assistance as will enable him to more competently help himself, so much the worse. When he has come to regard unaided exertion in the light of misfortune and to brood gloomily over his fate, the [illegible] about the only resource left him, and for once he makes the most of an opportunity. It is the courageous workers of the world who are entitled to respect, sympathy and encouragement. The coward who simply drops a load because he finds it heavy, leaves no place vacant in the world that would be the better for being filled.

MILITARY MATTERS.

The report that Gen. Miles had been sent to Arizona to succeed Gen. Crook, it seems was premature. The propriety of relieving Crook has been talked about at Washington and the president has said that if he were relieved Miles would be sent to take his place. But as yet Crook has not been recalled and he may not be. It is generally understood that the president has high regard for Miles personally and as a soldier and that he would be glad to advance his fortunes. He is especially interested in the Indian question and hopes to distinguish his administration by its permanent settlement, and it is said that he looks to Miles to aid him. A Washington correspondent says that Crook's treatment of Lieut. Chase last year has created a prejudice in the mind of the president, and that but for the influence of Gen. Sheridan he would have been recalled long ago. Delay in issuing the order relieving him and substituting Miles was all that the president would agree to, and his original purpose is likely to be carried out at any time.

These matters are watched with more than usual interest in the army, owing to the fact that several high grade officers are soon to fall out under the retiring act, giving the president the opportunity of advancing whomsoever he chooses. Gen. Pope will retire in the coming March, and Gen. Hancock in two years, just before the end of the presidential term. Miles, it is understood, is understood to be a candidate for the first vacancy, and, if he does not get it, will no doubt be a candidate for the second. It is not unreasonable to suppose that Cleveland will appoint him in the one instance or the other. It is understood in the army that Miles is ambitious for the chief command, and that he confidently expects to attain it. He is now 46 years old, with eighteen years of active service ahead, and the youngest of the brigadiers, the only one, in fact, who has both high reputation and comparative youth. If Cleveland makes him a major-general he will be the natural successor of Gen. Sheridan in the chief command when the latter retires nine years hence. He is entirely worthy of this high position, and his friends in Oregon will hope to see him attain it.

According to an Eastern Oregon paper, parties in certain sections of Gilliam county have adopted the most approved anti-coolie tactics for the purpose of getting rid of the flocks of the herdsmen that have been wont to feed upon the succulent bunch grass thereabouts. Sheep owners have been notified to remove their stock by a certain date from ranges indicated, or a loyal and determined name ess brigade "would not be responsible for the consequences." Had there been a clause notifying these herders that this is "a white man's government" we would strongly suspect that an exiled Tacoman had found his way to Gilliam county, bearing with him the document setting forth the estimate of justice and industrial economy for which that place has become noted. To make the matter the more certainly traceable to its source, the most inconspicuous of these letters was signed "A hardworking struggler for bread." Some lamb has surely strayed from the Tacoma fold. Sheep owners have increased their flocks of herdsmen and might then and there defy [illegible] the "strugglers for bread," who have developed such a hankering after mutton.

The regular winter complaint of the insufficiency of the heating apparatus of the Harrison street school building is made. The shiftless and traditional excuse is at hand. When the weather is mild the building is as fine as the rest. When it is cold they cannot be warmed at with, as the wood freeze out teachers and pupils completely. So the shivering teachers and snuffling children must worry through the cold, [illegible] and extra mittens, stockings and mittens, and by marching around to keep up their circulation. All this, however, so long as the tower of the High school building is pronounced a triumph of art, and its friezes and cornices and brackets and trimmings of oiled and polished woods attest the pride that the people have in the progressive methods that belong to free education. Warmth is a vulgar attribute that was thought necessary in the school houses of pioneer times.

The storm of yesterday extended over the whole country but manifested itself in different forms in different sections. In Eastern Oregon it snowed heavily, in Western Oregon and Washington it snowed but not heavily, and in Southern Oregon it rained. It was a reproduction on a reduced scale of the great storm of last year. The snow which now covers Western Oregon to a depth of six inches will afford ample protection from any cold that is likely to follow. Stock will suffer no doubt, but owing to the mildness of the season up to this date farmers are well provided with feed.

The brother of the Standard exhibits an irritability that plainly indicates "hard times." He is in such straits, indeed, as to find it necessary to attribute to THE OREGONIAN a statement it never made and then he gets angry about it. THE OREGONIAN did not say that the publication of a newspaper by Mr. Noltner was "bad for the democrats." What the brother of the Standard is accusing others of "blackguardism and mental imbecility," it might be pertinent to inquire whether the act of lying is not a pretty good indication that these harsh terms might fit himself.

There is no promise for Ireland in the queen's speech. The talk of coercion will only inflame the discontents of the Irish people.

SALEM NOTES

SALEM, JAN. 20.

Governor Moody has gone to The Dalles.

A children's masquerade carnival is announced to take place at the skating rink on Saturday next.

Hon. R. P. Earhart, secretary of state, is confined to his room suffering with a severe inflammation of the eyes.

Olds & Summers, of Portland, have filed the trade mark "Hero Safety Oil" in the office of the secretary of state.

Mrs. F. M. Waite will entertain a number of her friends at luncheon at her residence on State street on Friday next.

E. J. Johnson, formerly with J. [illegible], has opened a stationery and general fancy goods store on Commercial street.

The Alka Hesperians are perfecting arrangements for the presentation at Reed's opera house at an early day of that beautiful drama "The Lady of Lyons."

The remains of Miss Johanna Lyle, who died at Eugene a few days since, passed through here yesterday en route to her old home at Dallas, accompanied by her mother and sister.

Sedgwick post No. 10, G. A. R., indulged in one of their characteristic campfires last evening. They are always well attended, the novelty of the affair sustaining the interest, while the recital of army reminiscences can not fail to prove entertaining. Last evening's occurrence was no exception to the general rule.

The Chinese agitation has reached Salem and a delegation representing the Knights of Labor visited a number of our business men yesterday and presented documents for their signature pledging the signer to employ no more Chinese and to discharge those already in his employ on or before March 1, 1886. A diversity of opinion appears to exist as to such pledges.

The committee of firemen appointed to arrange for a firemen's ball met at Bord & Knister's office a few evenings since, and decided upon holding it at Reed's opera house, on the evening of February 22, 1886, and appointed a number of sub-committees to carry out the various details of the event. The boys are bound to make the affair a grand success.

The Scandinavian commercial union has filed articles of incorporation in the office of the secretary of state. Principal office at Astoria, with a capital stock of $5000. Object, the purchase and sale of general merchandise, stock, etc. Incorporators, C. W. Petersen, J. Fuberg and A. [illegible]. Also, the Little Klamath water ditch company. Incorporators, W. C. [illegible], J. I. Adams, B. I. Van Brunner. Principal office, Linkville, with a capital stock of $10,000.

The Epiphany party held last evening at the residence of Mrs. S. E. Houlet, corner of Church and Union streets, proved, as was anticipated, a very pleasant social event, Mrs. Houlet, assisted by her daughter, Miss Emily Houlet, and other ladies of the parish, doing all in their power to make their guests welcome. Refreshments were served at a seasonable hour, and no pains spared to make the event enjoyable. Will J. [illegible] drew the Epiphany ring and will have charge of the Epiphany party of 1887.

LEBANON NOTES

LEBANON, Jan. 19.

The new bank building will soon be completed and opened for business.

A young people's Christian association has been organized, with quite a large membership.

Hunters claim there are less ducks and wild geese this winter than usual. Why it is, no one is able to tell.

C. B. Montague, who has been sick for the past three months, is just getting able to be around a little.

There are many fields of fall wheat so far advanced that joints are formed, and fears are entertained that such will be greatly injured if freezing continues.

There is a general feeling that it will require too much time and trouble to vote this year, and without there is some issue of importance outside of the offices, many will not bother about registering.

The Methodist congregation have organized a Sunday school, with the following officers: Charles McHorah, superintendent; Mrs. [illegible], assistant superintendent; Frank Balfour, secretary; Miss Hen[illegible] Gilbert, organist, and W. M. Lellis, chorister.

One of the most remarkable revivals in the history of Lebanon has been under way and still going on, under the charge of Rev. Mr. Sweeny, assisted by Revs. W. H. Shireland and Hunter. Over 100 have been converted and 100 have joined the different churches—St. the M[illegible] Church. The interest still is unabated and unfolds come forward every night to the altar for prayers.

NOTES FROM WINLOCK

WINLOCK, W. T. Jan. 1[illegible].

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The January term of Lewis county court closed Saturday evening. The only important case tried during the term was the Territory vs. Gilbert Richards, charged with the crime of rape. The jury returned a verdict of guilty and Richards was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. The verdict is generally approved by the public, and the sentence considered light.

Capt. E. J. Finch, one of our oldest and most respected citizens, was stricken with paralysis this morning about 7 o'clock. He remains unconscious and is not expected to live.

Last Friday a young man by the name of Lewis was playing with Ollie Harrington, a 7-year-old daughter of our hotelkeeper, and fell upon her arm, breaking it in two places.

THE BURNT RIVER MINES.

Change in the Presidency—Flattering Report from a California Expert.

Mr. Alexander Kayser, one of the principal shareholders, was yesterday elected president of the Burnt River Mining and Milling company. Mr. W. B. Fisher the well known California mining man, is now at the mines on Burnt river, making a careful examination of the property of the company and the development of the mines, which will be vigorous and extensive and will probably be made under his direction. The "M. W." mine, lately purchased from J. F. Watson by A. H. Ellis, has been transferred to the company.

Mr. M. J. Sweeny, who was sent to Burnt river by the Hendy iron works of San Francisco, passed through Portland on his way home. Being asked to express his opinion as to the value of the company's property, he said: "Any of your mines on Gold hill are good enough to become the best camp in California. I like what stock I can pay for, and advise my friends to go on the same. You have got the stuff, lots of it, and it's very easy to get it. If you manage it in a proper way and with competent management you ought to be earning good dividends right from the first month's run of the mill."

The contractors on the cross cut tunnel to the Oriental, have struck stringers of rich ore, and report that they are within twenty feet of the main ledge. The funds of the company are being expended only for the necessary development, and the management is not and will not incur one dollar of indebtedness without funds in the treasury to cover same.

WASHINGTON

The dwelling house of Mr. Peter Bauman at Lake Union, near Seattle, was burned with nearly all its contents on January 18. His loss was about $2,000.

Miss Abbie Carr, about 14 years of age, whose parents reside on Fifth street, Seattle, was thrown from a sled while coasting on Cherry street, and one of her legs was broken.

Capt. Chas. Low has awarded the contract for the lumber for the new steamer to Blackman Brothers, of Snohomish. T. W. Lake is now making the model for the new boat, the contract for the building of which will be let within ten days. The boat will be built at Snohomish City.

Ice an inch in thickness has formed over the mouth of the Skagit river, thus temporarily closing navigation on that stream. The steamer Glide, not expecting ice, and not being prepared to cut her way through, returned from the mouth of the Skagit yesterday. Capt. Charles Low states that a thin scum formed over the Snohomish river but not so as to interfere with navigation as yet.

BRIEF MENTION

Clean your sidewalks.

Council proceedings on fourth page.

Farmers are asking higher prices for cattle and sheep.

The Columbia arrived here at 4:10 yesterday afternoon.

The State of California crossed to sea yesterday afternoon.

If energy is insufficient to clear sidewalks of snow, make a path through it.

License to wed was issued yesterday to M. [illegible] Nicholas and Annie A. Ellerson.

The West Shore offices are being moved to larger quarters, Second and Yamhill.

The steamer Gov. Newell will leave foot of Alder street at 8 o'clock this morning for the Washington territory shore.

Chief of Police Parrish says it is his intention to enforce the ordinance regulating the cleaning off of snow from sidewalks.

Capt. C. W. Sprague, formerly of this city, will have command of a new tug now being built by Hiram Doncaster on Puget sound.

A. H. Johnson received a letter from Prin[illegible]ville yesterday, stating that snow was seven inches deep there and cattle were looking well.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Morse brought down from Pendleton yesterday Charles Colson and John Noland, charged with selling liquor to Indians.

The entertainment which was advertised for Friday at Y. M. C. A. hall, has been postponed till further notice on account of the indisposition of Miss De Forrest.

The steamer Traveler will leave Morrison street at 8 o'clock this morning for the Washington shore opposite the mouth of the Willamette. She carries the U. S. mail for Vancouver.

Henry Ankeny was in the city yesterday and secured a fine hound to add to his pack for hunting coyotes. These vermin are quite common in the hills of Marion county and Mr. Ankeny has killed three since New Year's.

Last Saturday afternoon Dr. J. L. Hill, of Albany, while crossing Calapooia bridge, on his return from a visit to a country patient, was thrown from his horse and quite badly bruised about the head and left side. No bones were broken.

The Brunswick billiard hall of this city has just introduced a cash system which, although pretty generally used in eastern cities is a novelty on this coast. It consists of a cash drawer and register combined. In front of the drawer are keys of various denominations from five cents to ten dollars. When money is put in the drawer one of these keys is pressed, a bell rings, the drawer flies open and the amount of the sale is recorded. When cash is balanced the exact amount which the drawer should contain is quickly computed.

PERSONAL.

Officer Dan Coffey, of the San Francisco police force, arrived here yesterday, and is stopping at the Esmond.

Arthur Kohn will shake Oregon weather to-day and take in the eastern winds and storms. He goes to New York on business.

Dr. L. W. Munhall, the evangelist, who comes to Portland from California to hold revival meetings, will leave San Francisco for Portland on the steamer State of California Thursday next. He will hold his first service Sunday, the 31st, at the tabernacle.

The blood cleansing qualities of Ayer's Sarsaparilla render it invaluable in all skin disorders.

SNOW STORM

Six to Twelve Inches Yesterday Between Albany and Portland.

Heavy Fall in the Columbia River Gorge and the Blue Mountains—O. R. & N. Co.'s Freight Trains Tied Up—Probabilities.

About noon yesterday it began to snow, and continued without interruption until late at night. It fell in small flakes, very dry and at times was almost hard enough to be called hail. A light, steady northeast wind prevailed until after 7 o'clock, when it shifted to southeast and then varied between these points. The barometer at 8 o'clock Tuesday night was 29.68, and at 3 yesterday morning had risen to 29.71. It then fell rapidly, touching 29.40 at noon and dropping twenty points further by 4 P. M. This is remarkably low, about 30 points lower than normal for rainy weather. At 8 A. M. the mercury marked 21, at noon 22, and at 4 P. M. 21. So slight was the wind that the air was not uncomfortable, and the snow has not drifted in the least. Toward evening the snow began to bother the street cars, but all the lines made trips, though not with accustomed regularity. From 7 to 10 P. M. the fall was somewhat lighter than during the day, but there was no cessation at any time. At 10 P. M. it lay on the ground to the depth of about eight inches, which included the two inches from the day before.

IN THE VALLEY.

Up to 1 P. M. rain fell all the way from Roseburg to Albany and snow north of Albany. The Oregon & California trains were delayed only slightly. Following are weather bulletins received at 7 last night:

Halsey—Sleeting, 2 inches sleet and snow.

Albany—Snowing and blowing hard, wind north, 3 to 4 inches on ground.

Salem—Snowing hard, 3 inches snow.

Aurora—Snowing hard, 7 inches snow.

Independence—Snowing, 14 inches on ground.

McMinnville—Snowing, wind north, [illegible] inches on ground.

Corvallis—Six inches snow, still snowing hard.

South of Halsey the lines were in trouble and no report could be received.

So long as the snow does not drift, the valley roads will have little trouble to get through, but if a wind springs up, the snow being light and dry, is certain to drift and create a blockade. The local manager wanted an appropriation for two snow plows, but the directors deemed that expense unnecessary hence the road is not equipped for fighting snow.

THE INLAND EMPIRE.

As might be inferred from the direction of the wind, a furious storm is raging down the Columbia river pass, and on the Blue mountains. Thus far, the lines of the O. R. & N. Co. have been kept clear, and trains have been on time. Whether this can be kept up to-day is a problem. Here is a summarized statement of the weather at 4:30 yesterday afternoon: Snowing and blowing hard from Troutdale to Hood river, 3 to 6 inches of snow on the ground; snowing hard and calm from Mosier to Dalles; 3 to 6 inches snow, snowing and drifting between Blalocks and Castle Rock, 3 inches snow, snowing, calm, at Alkali and Willows; cloudy and calm at Umatilla, not snowing at hour of sending dispatch, 2 inches snow on ground; snowing and calm at Wallula.

FREIGHT TRAINS TIED UP.

Every indication pointing to a storm of at least twenty-four hours duration, Superintendent Rowe, of the O. R. & N. company, at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon ordered all freight trains to "tie up" when they reached their respective destinations. He will hold the Pacific express (train No. 1), due here at 10 o'clock this morning, at The Dalles until it is reasonably certain that she can get through. All operators have been ordered to send in weather reports this morning to headquarters. A snow plow with two engines will leave The Dalles on No. 1's time this morning and proceed westward. If possible it will come through to Portland, but will be sent back to The Dalles before the passenger train will be permitted to start. Last year's experience will not be repeated.

The Atlantic express left on time yesterday afternoon, behind a "double header," and reached The Dalles in time. The forward engine was fitted with a newly patented snow plow. This is simply a plow made of heavy boiler iron, very strongly braced, which takes the place of an ordinary pilot. It sits about three inches from the rails, but when weighted with snow gives down to within an inch of the track. The company have eight of these new plows. No trouble of any consequence is feared above The Dalles. The Northern Pacific train, west-bound and due here this morning, was reported on time. No. 1 was making time east of The Dalles behind a "double header."

In the Blue mountains the snow came down like a blanket all day and lies to a depth of five feet. A snow plow preceded the west-bound passenger train which left Huntington on time, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and cleared the track to the top of the eastern slope, allowing the train to reach Meacham on time last night. There will probably be no trouble on the western slope of the mountains.

Reports at 11 P. M. show the storm increasing in the Columbia gorge and the snow falling at the rate of an inch an hour or more. The snow at that hour was between 18 and 20 inches on a level.

About 11 o'clock last night the wire was restored as far south as Ashland, when the following bulletins were received:

Ashland—Raining, wind south.

Grant's Pass—Warm, raining, wind south.

West Fork—Raining very hard, there was 5 inches of snow at noon, and this is rapidly disappearing. [West Fork is thirteen miles north of Glendale, in the Cow creek hills. This accounts for the snow.]

It was raining at Roseburg at 8 o'clock.

Between Albany and Roseburg the operators had shut up shop, and no reports were received.

At 11 o'clock last night the snow ceased in this city and by 1 o'clock this morning the moon was shining clear and bright, though occasionally obscured by clouds for a minute or two.

A LESSON IN GEOGRAPHY

Likewise a Remark on the Meteorology of this Country

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19, 8 P. M.—Indications for Oregon and Washington territory for the succeeding thirty-two hours: Continued cool cloudy weather and local rains.

This is what THE OREGONIAN published yesterday morning, not because it valued the "news," but it came in the shape of a telegraphic public doc. and was entitled to respectful consideration. The author of this prognostication is Lieut. W. A. Glassford, who recently arrived from the East.

Mr. Glassford, will you please glance over the column in to-day's paper headed "Snow Storm"? Do you think we Oregonians and Washington territorians can place any confidence in you hereafter? "Local rains" indeed. Why, man dear, if you intend to predict for Southern Oregon, say so, but in the name of science and for the honor of the signal service of the United States army, don't, please don't, try to make the same kind of weather for two separate kinds of climate. Just take down the map of Oregon and Washington, while you receive an a, b, c lesson in geography. Study it carefully and you will observe that the state and the territory together are larger than Rhode Island. It is 600 miles in a straight line from the California boundary to Spokane Falls, and there are settlements, still in Washington territory, 100 miles north of Spokane Falls. There is nearly as much difference in temperature between Jacksonville in Oregon and Spokane Falls as there is between New York state and Florida.

Here are the data you had on which to base your indications: Portland, barometer rising, 29.68, calm, temperature 40, 01 in. rain; barometer 29.[illegible], wind south, temperature [illegible] Roseburg, barometer 29.61, calm, temperature [illegible]; Spokane Falls, barometer 29.[illegible], wind east, clear, temperature [illegible]; Walla Walla, temperature 9, wind south. Honest, now, did you consider any other place besides Roseburg when you evolved your prediction? No doubt you've traveled considerably, but did you ever hear of it raining when the mercury was within one degree of zero as it was at Spokane Falls, or within sixteen degrees, as it was at Portland? Of course if a Chinook wind had sprung up—well, this is too deep for you yet. It will do for another lesson.

A CARD

PORTLAND, Jan. 20, 1886.

When S. B. Pettengill, editor of the Standard, states that the editor of the World has received any encouragement or financial assistance, or promise of any, or has solicited the same, directly or indirectly, from Hon. J. P. Thompson, or any other republican, or that the World is published in the interest of any republican, ring or clique, he utters a most malicious and cowardly falsehood, and gives additional evidence that he is the utterly worthless prevaricator and slanderer that his own writings have heretofore proven him to be, to my entire satisfaction.

A. NOLTNER.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

BEAT, AND HAD TO PAY COSTS.—Mr. J. H. Barker was arraigned in the police court yesterday to answer to a charge of assault and battery preferred by Isaac Gevurtz. It appears that Gevurtz had engaged Barker to paint some doors for him and had given him a pair of rubber shoes in prepayment. When Barker came with his paint Gevurtz objected to the color. Barker had come all the way in from Hood street to the job, and had expended a dollar for the paint, so he wished Gevurtz to pay for the paint, which he refused to do. "Then what about the rubbers?" asked Barker, who felt a little vexed. "Oh, you can keep them," said Gevurtz. "I don't want them," was the reply, and Barker pulled them off and threw them at Gevurtz, who thereupon had him arrested for assault and battery. As soon as the testimony was concluded Judge Dement said: "The case is dismissed and the costs, $12.50, are taxed to the plaintiff." There was an audible smile all around the room as the sentence was pronounced.

A QUESTION OF AGE.—In the police court yesterday Edward Duncan, a young colored man, had an examination on a charge of perjury, for swearing Sarah Stevens was of legal age to wed Mr. Taylor when it is said she is not. Sarah Stevens, Sr., the mother of the girl, was the first witness. She created no little amusement [illegible] took up quite a little time in [illegible] her daughter [illegible] was born during [illegible] February 1868, and [illegible] Sarah [illegible] remember the year the child was born. [illegible] twenty or almost any age, but was born in 1868. The case was continued until to-day in order to secure the attendance of [illegible] the husband of the girl, as a witness. He may be able to tell just how old Sarah is.

THAW YOUR METERS.—People whose gas meters are in exposed positions are complaining of trouble with their gas, which can't burn well. If they will protect their meters from the cold by wrapping sacks or something of the kind around them they will not be troubled. There is some moisture in the gas which wets the leather hinges in the meter and when it is cold the leather freezes and the meter does not work well. Many meters are in exposed places under windows and in stairways. If they are warmed up they will be all right.

FAST TIME.—The new steamer Olympian, which recently arrived in Portland from the sound, while coming up the Columbia river made the distance from Astoria to Mount Coffin in two hours and a half. This means that the steamer will be able to run this city from Astoria in five hours. When working on "full stroke" the Olympian's wheel makes twenty-two revolutions per minute, and running up the river her engines made only sixteen turns to the minute. More than that, after leaving Astoria a strong northeast wind was encountered.

CLEAN YOUR SIDEWALKS.—Do it this morning. It will not take long, and the work will relieve many a man going to his work and returning tired at night. In the residence portion of the city it would be asking too much to clear the walks entirely, but a path, if only one foot wide, is a long ways better than no path at all. Make the path, if for no other reason than that to accommodate the one gentleman who delivers you this morning's OREGONIAN. His is not a path of roses to-day.

CLEARING THE TRACKS.—Last night Superintendent Harlbough, of the First street railway, had an immense snow plow, drawn by six horses, clearing the track. It was like a large frame lying down, and cut a swath twelve feet wide, throwing the snow so far outward that the drift that teams traveling the street to-day will not easily throw it back into the rails. The Third and G street lines were also fairly engaged, and regular patrons need not fear of doubling.

INCOME FROM CITY LICENSES.—Following is a brief but full statement of the receipts of the city from liquor and other licenses: Number of groceries where liquor is sold, 84; number saloons last quarter, 149; number saloons present quarter, 14[illegible]; total saloon license, $10,650; for liquor not to be drank on premises, $1,350; licenses other than above, $2,515; total amount of license to date, $14,[illegible]; number of laundries, [illegible].

FINE CUTTER.—The White cutter, exhibited at Mechanics' fair last October, and which attracted much attention and elicited so many remarks of admiration, was purchased yesterday morning by Magoon Bros., and shows that they have confidence that sleighing will remain good for some time. At this time, when sleighing can be indulged in, it is gratifying to know that the Mitchell & Lewis Co. have such a fine stock for sale.

SHE'S LAID UP AT LAST.—Yesterday Capt. Gregory, first officer Richardson and the entire crew of the U. S. lighthouse tender Shubrick left Astoria by the State of California and will bring up the Manzanita. After years and years and years of active service, the Shubrick now lies in Shively bay, on the lower Columbia, out of commission. She has served this lighthouse district well.

SOCIABLE POSTPONED.—The Hall street church concert and sociable which was to have come off Friday evening of this week, in view of the present severe storm, and the prospect of its continuance, has been postponed until Friday evening of next week.

FREE MEALS.—Spaulding & Papworth, the well known butchers and packers, corner Third and Ash streets, recognizing the present hard times, will to-day issue 100 meal tickets to the poor and needy. Apply between 11 A. M. and 1 P. M.

THE FREE KINDERGARTENS

A Third Garten to be Opened in Watson's Addition by Six Generous People

The regular monthly meeting of the board of managers of the Portland Free Kindergarten association was held in the council chamber Tuesday.

The report of the treasurer showed the financial condition of the society to be favorable, there being sufficient funds in the treasury to carry the two gartens during the coming month.

A third garten is to be opened in Watson's addition. The directors did not think it feasible to open a new garten on the old plan of soliciting irregular subscriptions, and for this reason set themselves at work in another way. They adopted the plan of monthly subscriptions and have already succeeded in getting six out of a necessary seven to subscribe $5 per month for a year to support the new school.

The signers are five gentlemen and one lady, but all refuse to allow their names to be published, and one man was so modest as to refuse to allow his name to appear on the paper. Having secured the promise of six-sevenths of the funds necessary to run the school for the ensuing year the board of managers feel no hesitancy in opening the new kindergarten.

If any gentleman or lady has $5 a month he or she would like to subscribe to fill out the necessary seventh let that person notify the secretary, Mrs. R. Hoyt, 210 Washington street.

The building is obtained free of rent. Whittier, Fuller & Co. donated glass, etc., and through the gift the house was made tenantable. The garten will open next Monday. Miss Goldman, who has been assistant teacher of No. 1 school, has been promoted to be principal of the new kindergarten. Miss Weld will succeed Miss Goldman in her former position, and Miss Weld in turn will be succeeded by Miss Caldwell.

THE COURTS.

A Number of Indictments Returned Yesterday by the Grand Jury.

Divorce Litigation—The Oregon Iron and Steel Company Seek to Recover $1500—Sheriff Enjoined from Selling Bankrupt Stock

The divorce case of J. S. Rodgers vs. Roxina Rodgers has been referred to N. D. Simon as referee.

Judge Stearns yesterday confirmed the sale of certain real estate by the sheriff, in the case of Otto von Holdern vs. P. Keeler et al.

A short time ago W. F. Burns & Co., a lamp firm of Portland, brought suit against the Co-operative Flint Glass company, an eastern firm, to recover certain commissions for selling their wares. Yesterday by stipulation it was agreed that the defendants have until the 25th inst. to answer to Burns' complaint. Burns, to secure himself, it is said, has had the sheriff attach certain glassware of defendant's in the city.

Judge Stearns will announce his decision to-day in the case of Wally Cline vs. [illegible].

A mandate has been received from the supreme court affirming Judge Smith's decision in the case of Octave Normandin vs. [illegible]. The suit was brought by Normandin to recover several [illegible], and [illegible] won.

Judge Smith yesterday gave judgment for plaintiff [illegible] in the case of [illegible] vs. [illegible] Culver and [illegible]. This is an action brought [illegible] on a promissory note given [illegible] July [illegible] at East Portland.

[illegible] of the [illegible] Mortgage and Trust Investment company vs. [illegible] was set [illegible] yesterday for trial in the United States circuit court Wednesday, February 3.

In the case of F. Ross vs. M. Morris in the United States circuit court, judgment was given yesterday for want of answer, and an order made for the sale of property attached.

DAMAGE SUIT.

Yesterday in department No. 1 state circuit court, the case of Fisk & McMillan vs. the O. R. & N. Co., was tried before a jury. Plaintiffs brought suit January [illegible], 1885 to recover $[illegible] for losses suffered by the cars of the company at [illegible] between [illegible] and Squally Hook. They assert that on August 27, 1884 two mares were killed of the value of $[illegible], through the negligence of the railroad company's agents, and on October 1 the following one horse and a colt, of the total value of $[illegible], were killed. At last accounts a verdict had not been reached.

SUIT ON A NOTE.

Suit has been instituted in the state circuit court by E. [illegible] against James [illegible] and W. H. Davenport to recover $[illegible]. On January [illegible] defendants, who were then in business in Washington territory, gave their note to Hawley, Dodd & Co., for $[illegible]. It was never paid, and has since been assigned to plaintiff, who claims that with interest accrued $[illegible] is now due.

SHERIFF ENJOINED FROM MAKING SALES.

As has been mentioned in THE OREGONIAN, H. Rosenfeld & Co. were recently awarded judgment against Adolph Wildman for $[illegible] by Judge Smith. Previous to this Henry Wise got out an attachment suit against Wildman, who kept a fruit store at the corner of First and B streets, to recover $870, and had the place closed by the sheriff. The sheriff advertised the property for sale on the 25th inst. Yesterday F. Rosenfeld & Co. commenced an action in the state circuit court, complaining that Wildman was not indebted to Wise and that the $870 claim was a fraudulent one, and that it was a conspiracy to defraud existing between Wise and Wildman. It was therefore asked that Sheriff Jordan be restrained from selling the goods under attachment. Judge Stearns made such an order pending a hearing of the case and required Rosenfeld & Co. to give an indemnity bond of $1000.

Some three weeks ago a fire occurred in the store of Morris the tailor, on Washington street between Third and Fourth, and the next day W. J. Quinn and the sheriff attached him and also the insurance to satisfy a claim of $2[illegible]. Brown, [illegible] & Co., Ross & Co., and [illegible] Rosenberg & Co., San Francisco firms, subsequently brought suits against Morris in the United States court to recover for goods sold and delivered. The San Francisco creditors allege that Morris does not owe Quinn $2900 and have had an injunction served on the sheriff from Judge Deady's court restraining him from selling the goods now in his possession. Sheriff Jordan has removed them from the store where they were, and has stored them away until matters are settled.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

The grand jury yesterday returned indictments against the following persons:

John McGee for burglary in breaking into Mrs. J. Doherty's house on D street on the night of December 10.

Thomas Jones who stole a couple of sides of bacon from I. Zimmerman's butcher shop on the morning of December 12.

John Douglas for larceny. Douglas is the sailor who broke the window in Alex. McKenzie's store last Monday morning.

Harry Kimball also for larceny. Kimball is charged with stealing some underclothing from the Trinity house on December 6, belonging to W. H. Johns.

Frank Payne who stole an overshirt of the value of $1 from Wing Hip, a B street wash house keeper, has been indicted for larceny in a dwelling.

John Daley has been indicted for stealing Geo. Drew's overcoat.

In the following cases not true bills were returned:

Chas. Egan, a young man arrested at 7 o'clock on the morning of December 11, for striking a saloonkeeper on First street, three doors from Alder, on the head with a rock, and John Hosey and Thos. Hughes, both accused of assault with a dangerous weapon.

SUED FOR $1500.

Yesterday the Oregon Iron and Steel company commenced suit against L. B. Seeley in the state circuit court. Plaintiff complains that prior to the first day of November, 1884, defendant was indebted to the Oswego iron works in the sum of $452.50, being the balance due on an open account, and that the same was for a valuable consideration transferred to plaintiff. Further, that between the first day of November 1882, and the 17th of October, 1884, the plaintiff advanced to defendant $3825.50, and of this amount but $2752.09 was repaid, wherefore he prays judgment for $1526.21 and costs.

MOTIONS TO BE ARGUED.

In Judge Stearns' court to-day, in the case of E. B. Lewellen vs. Mary D. Lewellen, which is a suit for a divorce, a motion to set aside an order of default and to allow the defendants to file an answer to the complaint will be heard, also a motion that plaintiff pay alimony to defendant, and her attorney fees. Lewellen is a Clackamas county farmer, and has been married to the defendant in this action for three years. The suit for divorce is brought on the ground of harsh treatment.

CHEHALIS NOTES

CHEHALIS, Jan. [illegible]

Chehalis will have two terms of court a year after this.

Hon. Thos. Burke, of Seattle, was in Chehalis yesterday.

Rev. May C. Jones has gone to Colfax, W. T., to hold a series of meetings.

There is some talk of moving the county seat, but Chehalis people express but little fear of losing it.

John Browning, while handling an "unloaded" pistol last Monday, was shot through the left hand, making the second time he has been shot in that hand.

The Chehalis literary society discussed at its meeting on Tuesday evening the question, "Resolved, That popular opinion has done more to suppress crime than has law and its execution." Messrs. Wagley, Welty and Tozier appeared for the affirmative, and Messrs. Forrest, Senn and Hurd for the negative. The decision was given to the affirmative. The next question is, "That the mind of man is superior to that of woman." W. A. Reynolds was elected president for the ensuing term.

EAST SIDE NOTES

Geo. I. Peaslee returned yesterday from a visit to Santa Rosa, Cal.

H. C. Pratt, of Adrian, Mich., who has been visiting his brother here, started for home yesterday.

Masons and others have temporarily provided for the destitute woman on N street, spoken of in yesterday's issue.

Dr. Geo. Wigg lectured on Masonry before Washington lodge last evening, his lecture embracing a period of nearly 3000 years. Those present pronounce it a very able effort.

The remains of S. S. Samuels, who recently died in California, arrived here yesterday per steamer. The wife of deceased, who is a daughter of Mr. T. DeClarke, accompanied.

ROBBERS HELD TO ANSWER.

Two Tramps who went through a Man on the Streets, Promptly Arrested, and Have Preliminary Trials.

Early yesterday morning William Frank and David Madden were arrested by Policeman Griffin in the Louvre saloon, as the men who robbed David Porter at the lower end of town a couple of hours previous. When the police court convened they had a preliminary examination. Porter testified that he met the men early in the evening at D and Second streets and struck up an acquaintance with them. Frank asked him for two bits, and then to treat him, which he did. They visited several saloons and played pool, after which they came out and he started up the street. The next thing he knew, or to use his exact language, "he didn't know what it was, but he suddenly lost all feeling, and on turning, around was caught by the throat and choked and strangled." Frank, he said, cut his buckskin purse, containing $30, out of his pocket and skipped. They tried to kick and hit him but he managed to avoid punishment.

After Porter finished Madden got up and told his story. He admitted that he had been in Porter's company, but as was natural denied robbing him, and said that he had been here but three weeks, during which time he had played pool for a living, but worked when he could get it.

"Didn't you go from the back part of Salem at one time?" asked Frank's attorney to escape.

"Yes, I did."

"For breaking and [illegible]?"

"Yes, I was in the [illegible] up in Baker city for a year and a half for [illegible]."

"Innocent, I suppose?"

"No, I was guilty."

Frank said he had but recently arrived from Dayton, W. T., where for a month he drove an omnibus. He acknowledged to the first meeting Madden in Chicago seven years ago, also to being with Porter, but denied the robbery.

"How did you get here?" asked Mr. [illegible].

"I came on freight train 17, O. P."

"Brakeman tip?"

"No, I just got in a box car."

"Pay your fare?"

"Well, I didn't give the company a cent."

"Do you say 'boo' when you ride?"

"No, I don't."

Madden was then asked if he hadn't changed coats with Frank in a coffee house. He replied that they did change garments and gave a lame excuse for so doing.

Judge Dement concluded that he was justified in holding the pair to answer before the grand jury and accordingly made such an order. Porter was held as a witness.

THE COEUR D'ALENE MINES.

Gold Discovered there More than Twenty Years Ago—The First Reports from the Diggings.

No doubt a great many people of the northwest coast believe that the discovery of gold in the Coeur d'Alene mountains near Eagle City and Murrayville, about three years ago, was something new. This is not the case. Construction of the Northern Pacific simply revived the interest that had been dead for nearly seventeen years. THE OREGONIAN of June 15, 1865, republished the following from the Lewiston Radiator:

The excitement in Lewiston consequent upon the gold news from the Coeur d'Alene [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Mr. Dennis came in yesterday from the [illegible]. He represents the excitement [illegible] [illegible] and several parties from Walla Walla [illegible] [illegible] for the present we will let the matter rest, not being in our possession of decisive facts.

The mines prospered for a while, but then as now, the Coeur d'Alene was no place for placer mining and became soon deserted.

RESERVED SEATS 50 CENTS

PORTLAND, Jan. 20.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The communication in your yesterday's issue, signed "Fifty Cents," demands a reply. To begin with, there were two excellent reasons for having certain seats in the house reserved at 50 cents. First, that many desired a certain portion of the house reserved where smoking was not allowed, and secondly, the great expense attending the engagement of W. T. Carleton's opera company. It is not, nor has it ever been the policy of this management to force 50-cent seats on the public, and certainly not to have a number of seats marked "taken" when they are in reality unengaged. By some oversight, this may have been the case as mentioned by your correspondent on a certain evening. The Casino opera house company and Mr. W. A. Thompson are a unit in desiring to please all (by the way, a difficult job) and will leave no stone unturned in making such arrangements needed for the public comfort, or in rectifying any existing mistakes.

VACANT SCHOLARSHIPS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

With your permission I desire to again call attention to a matter of public interest which I have several times before referred to through your columns

There are three educational institutions in Oregon supported by the state or under its patronage where any person residing in this county can receive an excellent education free of charge. These are the state university at Eugene the agricultural college at Corvallis, and the state normal school at Monmouth There is also another normal school at Ashland but the one at Monmouth is most convenient for students from this county Any one desiring to secure an education can obtain it by [illegible] either of these schools, and it will cost nothing

Multnomah county is entitled to a number of free scholarships in each one of these three schools, and in none of them is its quota filled. It seems strange that opportunities like these for obtaining an education, and, if desired, a technical or classical training without cost, should go begging but such is the case It is impossible to find persons to accept these scholarships.

There is a law department connected with the state university which is equally open to the holders of free scholarships The law school is located at Portland The faculty includes some of the ablest lawyers of the state. Any young gentleman desiring to pursue the study of the law will find this an exceptionally favorable opportunity

The only thing necessary to obtain a free scholarship in any of these institutions is to ask for it I should like very much to see every scholarship to which this county is entitled filled in all of these schools. All are excellent institutions They are maintained by the state for the purpose of affording free education to all, and they invite the boys and girls of Oregon to come and receive its benefits Such an invitation ought not to go unheeded

I shall be pleased to receive applications for scholarships and will furnish full information concerning them to any one who will call at my office

I will feel greatly obliged if you will give this letter space, both in your daily and weekly paper so that it may come to the attention of as many persons as possible

Respectfully yours O F PAXTON
Co-Superintendent of Schools

BREEDING LAMBS FOR MARKET

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

During the past year the question of a more varied farm industry has been discussed from time to time in THE OREGONIAN This was assisted even by the press excursionists from Iowa, some of whom seemed to think the culture of more clover, as a basis of enlarged and more general attention to dairy products was the way of profitable progress in the further development of Oregon agriculture After the argument in support of this course seemed to be all in, T T Geer, of Marion county, in an article that has not yet been controverted showed that the market for honest dairy products, so far as this coast was concerned, was already supplied, and that consequently there is yet discovered no better resource for a cash income for the generality of farmers than wheat for export, ground or unground

Later Mr G seemed to discover an opening in our industrial system which had let in eggs from Iowa, which he intends to help to stop by a good hen house on the Geer farm. This is very well worthy of imitation by others

Still, Mr Editor suggestions are in order, and so I venture one that if followed to practice might add another item of income to farms within easy reach of Portland, Astoria and more northern markets, which is breeding lambs for market Along the Columbia river and its tributaries west of the Cascades there must be very many small farms suitable for grazing mainly, which could be made into feeding farms for the production of lambs, wool and mutton by the system which has for many years been successfully pursued near the cities of the Atlantic side.

Under this system there are two crops of meat and one of wool within the year First, the lambs are bred and sold to the butchers from March till June second, the ewes are sheared and wool sold third, the ewes are fattened and turned off in July and August, and the farmer reinvests in another lot of ewes puts them to breeding as the beginning of the second year's operations, in which there are three main points First, early breeding second, lambing in barn or shed third, good feeding from the time the ewes are received on the farm till they are turned off to the butchers

Practice thus far gives the preference to Merino or high grade Merino ewes. They are good mothers, carry their valuable fleece without loss, breed earlier than any others, and fatten early after the lambs are turned off Mixed with a [illegible] the [illegible] is preferred on account of his small head; the lambs increase quickly in weight of fine grained [illegible] lean meat, just right to eat with asparagus and early peas.

Eastern Oregon now has plenty of most suitable ewes to spare annually. There are as many Shropshire rams bred in the Willamette valley as will meet the requirements of a beginning in this special line, which, without adding much if any to the female labor of the farmer's establishment, will give him the opportunity to make meat and manure during that portion of the year now mainly devoted to grumbling at the weather

For feed, anything that is known to be good milk feed in dairy farming, will be good—roots rape cabbage, clover, hay, supplemented if need be with oil cake meal and mill feed Of course, there's a lion in the way of success in this as in any other pursuit, and Mr [illegible] will fail if he doesn't get up and fill all the conditions of success But what man can do on the Atlantic side with six months of winter weather which carries the mercury below zero for a longer time than we have it below freezing in Oregon, the live Oregonian ought to be equal to. FREIGHTS—The Martha Fisher now will be loaded [illegible] This reduces the open list to four vessels

WHEAT—Foreign news is without particular new interest Imports into the United Kingdom for the past week were very light Up to the close of business no other advice was received but an early private advice said Chicago opened higher because of liberal buying by the shorts The wires are down in nearly all directions. Locally the market shows no change being flat stale and unprofitable to use an old phrase

OATS—Ready sale at 37@38c or good feed with offers of 39@40c not d for extra choice Receipts are light and demands poorly supplied Some poor sold at [illegible]

POTATOES—Light movement but local needs are easily supplied With warmer weather the shipping trade promises activity

APPLES—Small local needs at present with only a fair export movement Values range from 40 to [illegible] cents

EGGS Stocks liberal receipts light and market firm at 2[illegible]c

CHICKENS—Quote $[illegible] 0@3 50

PROVISIONS—Receipts are sufficient to prevent any decline in stocks, although very fair request is noted Values as a consequence show no quotable change and the market is quiet Chicago has reported a steady gain in value, although the advance is not marked We quote jobbing prices for ordinary parcels Its cured hams 10@11c bacon [illegible]c shoulders 6@[illegible]c country cured generally [illegible]@1c less eastern hams choice 11@11½c breakfast bacon 8@10c Best eastern tinned lard 9½c common local in large packages [illegible]c

DRIED FRUIT—Our market enjoys the same steady request that has been noted for a month past Stocks as a rule are liberal and values promise no advance At San Francisco peaches are plentiful at 4c, but buyers will not take hold All business is of a retail character Quote jobbing values for ordinary parcels Sun dried apples [illegible]@[illegible]c factory do [illegible]@8c pears 6@ 8c prunes 8@ 10c sun-dried plums 4@5c factory do 6@8c new peaches [illegible] best new raisins $[illegible]

HOPS—Receipts of late were confined to two parcels of valley for shipment The market is dull and uninteresting in the absence of buyers for any purpose Puget sound is now sending only small parcels A San Francisco mail advice says The report of his week concerning prices in this market meets daily with confirmation Inquiry being reported from several sources for choice at [illegible] cents which represents the outside limit of buyers views while ordinary grades are seldom mentioned. Crop of 1884 are also wanted for foreign shipment to sell at about 1½c per pound. Private telegraphic advices from England are about as barren of comfort as ever the latest reports barely sufficient to keep values in position It is also stated that while here is not much anxiety concerning the future among sellers, the confidence of American holders is not affected The New York market rules quiet with only the better grades exhibiting a steady feeling

WOOL—Arrival almost nothing In the week an order was received from a local mill for a small lot of choice and it was filled at [illegible] Commission houses hold some that will probably go east as the markets there are firm and enjoy a good demand Just now San Francisco would do as well Scourers wanting some The outlook for the new clip in this section is good at this time and without worse weather than now prevails there will be a large clip of choice wool Our grazing houses report the prospects as much better now than one year ago for them and they expect to handle larger quantities Growers who have tried consigning elsewhere are not satisfied with results and no doubt this market will assume greater importance Buyers will easily be attracted here if stocks are wide and their coming means a better price for the grower

The stock of wool at New York at the turn of the year was [illegible] 000 lbs domestic and [illegible] lbs foreign against [illegible] 00 lbs domestic and [illegible] 000 lbs foreign one year ago At Philadelphia the [illegible] lbs [illegible] At the two ports there is an increase of [illegible] lbs over one year ago [illegible] Stocks at leading [illegible] markets on January 1 show a reduction at all points except Philadelphia where the figures indicate an increase of nearly 600 00 lbs domestic and about 15 000 lbs foreign This increase is more than offset by the decrease at other ports and the stock of the country is comparatively small than at the corresponding period for several years previously This is an important feature considering the continued good demand from consumers and the healthy tone which has prevailed in the market during the current season Views are strong and the firm views entertained by holders is shown by the indifference with which they offer The [illegible] are [illegible] but manufacturers are apparently satisfied with the situation as the product of the [illegible] continues to find [illegible]

The Merchandise Market

The week has passed with a generally quiet trade On Monday business promised to [illegible] a snow storm at the [illegible] Imports are about [illegible] Among the arrivals [illegible] for spring business With [illegible] and the last [illegible] week is [illegible] quantity of cement

A review of [illegible] market says The market during the week was [illegible] By an auction sale of [illegible] coffee and [illegible] teas and it was found that the demand was [illegible] at unsatisfactory prices. In other lines of groceries the market is steady with a fair demand except rice, which has been firm for all grades with a decided advance during the week for mixed The market for metals is quiet Pig tin is in slow demand at 2[illegible]c per pound and tin plate is at present in very light request except for forward delivery The market for pig iron continues dull at low prices, owing to the light demand and large stocks In the last prices have of late ruled firm and a further advance in ore is probable Preparations are being made for a greatly increased output in the lake regions and the western pig iron production is being rapidly increased Prices are very firm and a further advance is probable Quicksilver is very scarce and firm at an advance sales being reported at $32 and $32 50 per flask
